

E-safety

What is e-safety?

E-safety is a term which means not only the internet but other ways in which young people communicate using electronic media, e.g. mobile phones, tablets, laptops, x box live etc. It means ensuring that children and young people are protected from harm and supported to achieve the maximum benefit from new and developing technologies without risk to themselves or others.

We take e-safety very seriously at Butterwick Primary School.

Our school follows a nationally recognised curriculum from reception all the way through to year 6 that covers a range of esafety areas. This can be found in the safeguarding section of the school website. You will also find lots of like to support and

- Dan Hawbrook is the E-Safety Officer from Lincolnshire Safeguarding Children Board (LSCB), delivers training to the children in school and he also makes himself available once a year to share advice, information leaflets, answer questions and deal with any concerns you may have.
- All staff receive e-safety training and are familiar with the school Safeguarding policy and e-safety policy.
- All staff and students sign and agree to abide by an ICT Acceptable use Policy.
- There are also links to support websites that you may find useful and helpful.
